

Ninni Westerholm

Sustainable construction is Ninni's main calling. She contributes to the much needed change by being involved in design, research, and development. She strives to understand the construction industry from the sustainability point of view from both the inside and the outside. Besides being a practicing architect who designs buildings, she develops design tools that guide towards green and conscious construction. Additionally, she is active in gathering and sharing information regarding circular economy in the built environment.

Ninni works as Sustainability Expert and Architect at HELST oy, see <http://www.helst.fi/>
