Ephrem Ndayisaba is the Regional Manager for Quality Management in Construction at Earth Enable Rwanda. He holds a bachelor's degree in Civil and Environmental Engineering from University of Rwanda. In his role, Ephrem provides the skills for construction using local materials and he ensures the quality and compliance of construction standards across the districts so that the customers may get durable and healthy products.

Earth Enable is contributing to circular solutions and health improvements with local materials. After realizing that people are suffering diseases caused by living in dirty houses and the environment is damaged with chemicals emitted from the production of some construction materials, Earth Enable started from 2014 with the aim of leveraging the demand for sanitary housing already present in local villages and the knowledge of earthen solutions amongst local construction workers. Main products are earthen floors, plasters and adobe blocks that are affordable, sustainable and healthy.
